

AJ Bell Income Ready-made portfolio half-yearly update

As of 30/06/2020

Commentary

Over the first half of 2020, the Income portfolio delivered a negative return of -6.65%, making an overall return of 7.02% since its inception on 12 December 2018. Across this half-year, the holdings in fixed income produced positive performance, while the equity fund returns struggled, particularly UK equity funds. Man GLG UK Income's focus down the market cap scale and value style held back returns over the period.

Coming into the year, there was a strong sense of cautious optimism for global growth but sadly this all changed abruptly as the realisation of the seriousness of the global pandemic took hold. Around the world, many countries went into lockdown wreaking havoc for both economies and capital markets globally. Global equities fell very sharply in a short space of time reflecting the fact that demand fell to zero instantaneously in many industries; which hasn't been witnessed even in some of the harshest of recessionary environments. This was swiftly followed by a strong recovery with capital markets experiencing a V-shaped recovery – in fact, one of the fastest recoveries ever witnessed in history, as government and central bank support was plentiful. However, clearly the global economy is not out of the woods just yet and volatility could continue from here onwards.

There has been a change for the Income portfolio in the first half of this year. The BNY Mellon Global Income fund has been removed as the lead fund manager, Nick Clay, and his team, confirmed their departure from the firm. We have introduced the Evenlode Global Income fund which has a focus on high quality companies that they hope will be able to generate sustainable cash flow to pay dividends over the long term.

Portfolio rating

The risk rating of the portfolio depends on the type of assets it invests in. Bonds are more conservative because they offer a more certain (though typically lower) return. Shares are more aggressive because they offer a less certain (though typically higher) return.

Keep in mind this applies over the longer term: five years or more.
